RUNAWAY.

A. Q. Turner is Thrown From His Wagon and Consequently Suffers a Broken Leg.

Monday afternoon, between 5 and 6 o'clock, A. Q. Turner was thrown from his road wagon. The wagon was overturned and the bed fell on him pinning him to the ground and breaking his right leg just below the knee.

Mr. Turner was on his way to his home near Mt. Olive Church from Hillsboro. He was driving two horses to a road wagon and while going down the steep hill on the Willettsville pike about three miles west of town, in front of Spahr Glaze's home, one of his lines broke. The horses were pulled to one side of the road, the wheels got in the ditch and the horses becoming excited started to run, overturning the wagon throwing him out and the bed falling on his leg breaking it. The horses broke loose from the wagon and ran up the road as far as the home of Mrs. Thos. Whittell, where they were caught by William Blair.

The tongue of the wagon was broken and the harness badly damaged. The horses were not hurt.

Mr. Turner was taken to the home of Mr. Glaze and his family telephoned to, Mr. Glaze then taking him home. His family had called a physician from New Vienna, who dressed the broken limb.

Farmers, Attention!

The Hillsboro and Highland County Exposition, which is to be held in October, will offer premiums for field seeds, including wheat, corn, oats, clover, timothy and orchard grass. The premiums will be announced hereafter by a committee appointed for that purpose. Attention is called to the fact at this time that the progressive farmers of the county may at once prepare for the cultivation of the best seeds.

Mrs. May Wright Sewall.

The lecture, "Our Growing World" by Mrs. Sewall, will be given Friday evening, May 15, at 7:30 o'clock, in Assembly Room of new parish house, Episcopal Church. Mrs. Sewall is most delighted to come to Hillsboro, and thanks her audience in advance. If Mrs. Sewall instructs and edifies her audience to the extent she is capable of, it will be an occasion to be remembered. The community has been very kind and responsive. Tickets still to be had—on sale at Mr. Schweinberger's.

A Good Attraction.

The last attraction that appeared at the opera house this season was the "Arrival of Kitty," which gave one performance here on last Thursday night.

The company was a well balanced one and strange to say none of them looked out of place upon the stage. Every member of the company was an artist of ability and the play has a swing and go to it.

A fair sized audience greeted the company and their appreciation of the entertainment furnished is shown by the fact that not a person left the house until the curtain fell in the last act, when it was rung up twice. A few plays of this standard will cause the local theater to be crowded at every performance.

Name Changed.

On Tuesday the petition of the residents of New Lexington to have the name of the town changed to Highland was heard before Judge Newby and granted.

This was requested by the citizens of the village as the name of the town was New Lexington and the name of the post office there is Highland and this has caused considerable confusion and much inconvenience to the residents. By changing the name to Highland this will be prevented and the town and post office will have the same name. There is no other town in the state by the name of Highland and as there is one by the name of New Lexington the court ordered that the name of the town be changed to Highland.

Miss Nellie Coler, of Greenfield, was the guest of Miss May Madden Tuesday.

ART EXHIBIT

At Armory Last Week An Exceptional Educational Opportunity.

Beautiful Pictures by Great Masters of Ancient and Modern Times to be Seen—Should be Made an Annual Event.

Last week the people of Hillsboro had an opportunity to study art, that all, perhaps did not grasp nor appreciate.

Through the efforts of Professor Warren, one of the Turner Art Exhibits was brought here. His object in bringing it, was first, for the school children. Nowadays in the public schools, in connection with their drawing lessons the study of art and art criticism is introduced as well as a knowledge of the artist and his life. To aid in this study penny pictures that reproduce in a small way all the great masterpieces of art are used. It has been learned that practically all of the school children attended the Exhibit and their recognition of the pictures and remembrances of the artists must have been very gratifying to their teacher.

As has been explained in another issue of this paper, a part of the profit on any picture sold while the Exhibit was here was given to the Public Schools, also the profit from the ticket selling, if there was any. All of which is liberal in the Turner Company.

Now as to the Exhibit itself. In the first place the pictures are in Brown, Gray, Color, and Hand Color Print as classified in the catalogue. The Hand Color Print seems the most difficult to manufacture because it so nearly absolutely reproduces the effect of the original picture. The others are in their way equally beautiful and less expensive. The Exhibit is about the right size, large enough to give a splendid idea of Art, Ancient, Mediaeval and Modern and not so large but that one can carry home with him a clear remembrance of most of the pictures.

Under the category of Ancient Art might be placed the pictures of the sculptury of Greece such as "Venus of Meos," "Victory of Samothrace," "Hermes," etc., and the photographs of places of interest in Greece and Rome such as the "Temple of Jupiter," the "Acropolis," the "Coliseum," and the "Roman Forum."

Under Mediaeval Art there were a great many noted pictures among the copies of the Exhibit. Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa," Raphael's "Sistine Madonna," Correggio's "Holy Night" and Guido Reni's "Aurora" were of the number.

Modern Art was represented in great variety. There were portraits of American statesmen such as Washington by Gilbert Stuart, Alexander Hamilton by Trumbull and Benjamin Franklin by Duplessis. There were two of Burne Jones, his "Hope" and "Golden Stairs." There was one of Whistler's, Turner's "Fighting Temeraire" and a number of Leighton's. There were photographs of the Capitol, Concord Bridge, Stratford on Avon, Yosemite Valley, etc.

As can be seen this collection brought to our door samples of the best in Art of all times. Of course there were copies, but there is no one place in the world that a person could see such a collection all in the original. Some of us may never see any of the originals so that an exceptional opportunity to see the best and most beautiful production of the great masters was given us that no one could afford to pass by.

All of the prints were large enough to give one a good idea of the details of the different pictures which is not often possible in the small copies that are in reach of every one. The Exhibit also presents a fine opportunity for those desiring to purchase, much better than buying by catalogue for one has before him a large number to select from just as they will appear when they are received, though one may in most instances choose a different size if so desiring and also the trouble of ordering is saved as Prof. Warren will take the order.

The pleasure of the Exhibit was greatly augmented by music every evening by the High School Orchestra assisted by many other musicians of Hillsboro and by the fact that it was possible to get ice cream, cake and coffee while there. The staff of the Trident, the High School paper had this in charge.

Exhibits of this character have a high educational value not only for the pupil but for the community generally and it is to be hoped that the patronage given the one last week was liberal enough to make it well worth the while of the Turner Company and the public schools to make it an annual event.

MARTIAL LAW

In Effect at West Union in Effort to Stop Night Riders.

West Union is practically under martial law, the result of the depredations of the night riders. The militia company from Manchester is stationed at the town and are patrolling the country around it. Every person coming in and going out is questioned in regard to his business, who he is and where he is going, the citizens are stopped on the streets at night and compelled to give an account of themselves, and soldiers are in evidence everywhere.

With all of these precautions the night rider got in their work on Tuesday night, burning the large tobacco barn of Wm. Shell, about two miles and a half west of the town, under the very nose of the troops. Mr. Shell is an independent tobacco grower and a member of the Law and Order League and was absent from home at the time. The loss is estimated at $3,500.

The town is wild with excitement and who will be the next to suffer at the hands of the night riders and will the militia be able to stop them are the questions that are yet to be decided.

Militia companies are scattered all along the Ohio river and practically all of that part of the state is under martial law, still each night some tobacco grower suffers at the hands of the raiders and, as yet, no one has been captured.

Charming Social Affair.

Mrs. L. B. Boyd entertained Saturday with a luncheon and cards in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Mitchell, of Cleveland. About forty-five guests were present. The house was beautifully and tastefully decorated with dogwood and wild crab apple blossoms. At 12:30 a delicious luncheon was served, after which the guests spent the afternoon playing bridge whist. The tour having the highest score, Mrs. Dr. H. M. Brown, Mrs. Charlie Scott, Miss Margaret Patton and Mrs. John Matthews received beautiful prizes.

WRECK ON B. & O.

Passenger Train Jumps Track at Hoagland.

The B. & O. S.-W. passenger train due here at 6:30 p. m. jumped the track at Hoagland's Crossing Tuesday evening.

The train was running at a high rate of speed when just before it reached the crossing the front trucks of the tender jumped the track, cutting the ties in two as if they were made out of paper and throwing dirt and cinders in every direction. The train was stopped very quickly and the passengers, who were slightly shaken up but uninjured, caught the traction car which is due there at that time and came on into town. Mail carrier, Conner, also came in on the car and brought in all of the first class mail.

The wrecking crew at Chillicothe was sent for and got the cars back on the track and the track fixed up so that the train got in here in time to make the regular run this morning.

CLARK RAPE CASE

Now Being Tried Before Judge Newby and a Jury—The Court Room Crowded.

The Prosecuting Witness and the Co-Defendant Attract Much Attention—Forest Hayes Gives Sensational Testimony.

The notorious rape case of the State of Ohio vs. Harry Clark, Grace Clark and William Trump, finally got started in the Common Pleas Court Monday with Judge Newby on the bench. An effort was made to have the case continued by the defense because of the absence of B. C. Spriggs, one of the defendant's witnesses, who had been summoned, but had not appeared in court. Judge Newby ordered that the attorneys proceed to the impaneling of a jury and if the witness had not shown up by that time for the defense to have ready affidavits setting forth the grounds on which they asked for continuance. The following jury was secured about 3:30 Monday afternoon: Walker Overman, D. H. Hodson, Wm. Bennington, C. A. Pence, M. J. Ludwick, Charles L. Euverard, H. H. Carr, M. S. Glaze, William Hill, T. E. McCoppin, T. H. Smith and Chas. Duncan.

The missing witness at that time had not been heard from and a recess was taken. Spriggs later reported and the jury was sworn Tuesday morning.

Prosecutor Smith, assisted by Attorney Whittaker, of Greenfield, represented the state and Col. D. Q. Morrow and Coke L. Doster, of Greenfield, the defense.

The case is proceeding at this time only against Harry Clark, the case against his wife and Will Trump for aiding and abetting in the rape, having been continued.

Prosecutor Smith made the opening statement to the jury for the state and outlined the States' case as follows:

"He said that they would show that arrangements were made with Forest Hayes to meet the defendant, Harry Clark, at Trump's photograph gallery on the night of Sunday, June 2, by Clark's wife and Trump, that pursuant to that agreement she met him there and that at that time he committed the offense complained of. That Miss Hayes at that time was but just past 15 years of age."

Col. Morrow outlined the case of the defendants as follows:

"That they would admit that the prosecuting witness on the night stated was at Trump's gallery and that the defendant was also there, but that the gallery was open almost every Sunday evening and that people frequently went there on business. That Miss Hayes had gone there on ordinary business and Trump not being there, had waited until he came, and that no outrage had been committed on her."

Forest Hayes, the prosecuting witness, was placed on the stand first by the States, her testimony was practically as follows:

"She was 15 years of age in April, 1907. That at one of the skating rinks, during the preceding winter, she had met Clark and that he had often skated with her and treated her with courtesy. That on Saturday June 1, 1907, Mrs. Clark had met her and asked her if she would meet Clark at the gallery on Sunday evening and entertain him as she wanted Trump to call on her at her home and wouldn't she keep her husband away. That, pursuant to this arrangement, she went to the gallery on Sunday evening about 7 o'clock and that Clark was there, and she asked him to turn on the lights and he said they were out of order and asked her to step in the back room. That they went in the back room and that they talked in an ordinary way for awhile, when he finally commenced to take liberties with her and finally outraged her. That she remained in the gallery after this occurred until Trump came up, which was about 9 o'clock, when he said he would go down stairs and go across the street to see if the coast was clear for her to get out and that he would give her the sign when to leave by lighting a match. That he went across the street and shortly afterwards struck a match, when she left the gallery and went to the telephone exchange, where she met her sister and father and went home with them. She told no one anything about what had occurred that evening and although she slept in the same room with her sister that night said nothing to her about it. On the following day her family questioned her about what she had been doing the night before and she told them all about it."

Upon cross-examination she stuck very close to her original testimony and was cool, calm and collected throughout, insisting at all times that the offense was committed against her will and that she had never before been intimate with any man.

Charles Steel, a merchant of Greenfield, was next placed on the stand and he testified in substance as follows:

"On the evening of Sunday, June 2, he was standing on the corner with several friends about 7 o'clock when he saw some one go up into Trump's gallery, but he could not tell who it was. He walked around for sometime later, about 9 o'clock, with Marshal Rooks, was standing at the side door of his store when he saw some girl, whom he thought was Forest Hayes come out of the stairway leading to Trump's gallery. That shortly before she came out Trump went up and stayed a few minutes and came down and went across the street. That immediately after she came down he went back to the gallery."

S. A. Rooks, Marshal of Greenfield, was the first witness called Wednesday morning. He said that he met Charley Steele about 8:30 Sunday evening and walked over with him to his store and was standing at the side door with him about 9 o'clock that evening when he saw a girl come out of the stairway leading to Trump's gallery and that he thought that it was Forest Hayes. He corroborated Steele as to Trump's actions at the time.

Bert Anderson and Charles Stoner also testified that they were standing on the corner of Jefferson and Mirabeau streets about 7 o'clock that evening and saw a girl go up into Trump's gallery and that they thought it was Forest Hayes. That after this Trump came up to them and told them how he could disguise his appearance so people could not recognize him and that he used the telephone in the Dunlap building. They were not allowed to tell to whom he talked over the phone.

Madeline Hayes, a sister of the prosecuting witness, corroborated her sister in regard to meeting her at the telephone office at 9 o'clock and the things that occurred after that.

Mr. and Mrs. Seward Hayes, the parents of the prosecuting witness, were put on by the State immediately after dinner Wednesday. They corroborated the statements of their daughter in regard to what happened before and after she was at the photograph gallery that evening.

The state then rested after which a short recess was taken. The defense opened their case at 2:30 with character witnesses and took up all of Wednesday afternoon with this phase of their case.

This trial involves some of the best families Greenfield the co-defendant Mrs. Clark is a daughter of Jacob Pommert, one of the wealthy citizens of that place. Trump, the co-defendant, is a married man, his wife being a sister of Attorney Coke L. Doster, former Mayor of Greenfield. Mrs. Clark, who is a beautiful brunette, has been seated by the side of her husband during the entire trial and has consulted and advised with his attorneys all the time.

Forest Hayes is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seward Hayes. He is employed at Lefever's Hardware store. He and his wife have been seated at the table with the state's attorneys during the entire trial.

The demeanor and conduct of both Mrs. Clark and Forest Hayes has been such as to attract much attention. At no time during the entire trial have either seemed to be in the least nervous, excited or embarrassed although they have been the target of the eyes of all the curious crowd that have gathered to hear this case.
